Yesterday a child came out to wonder

caught a dragonfly inside a jar

Fearful when the sky was full of thunder

tearful at the falling of a star

And the seasons, they go round and round

We're captive on the carousel of time

We can't return

We can only look behind

from where we came

And go round and round and round

in the Circle Game

Then the child moved ten times round the seasons

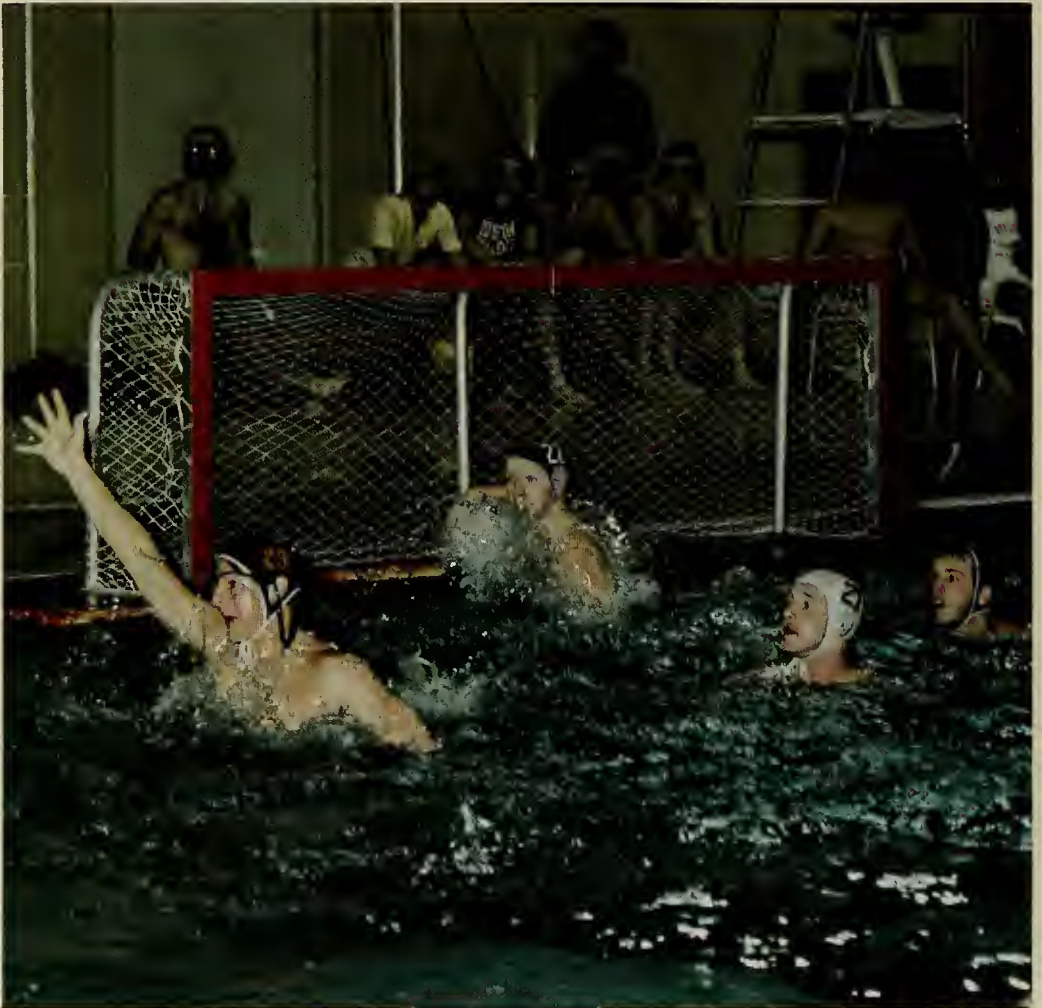

skated over ten clear frozen streams

Words like "when you're older", must appease him and promises of someday make up his dreams.

Sixteen springs and sixteen summers gone now

cartwheels turn to car wheels through the town

You tell her "take your time" because it won't be long now

'til you drag your feet

just to slow the circles down.

So the years spin by

and now the boy is twenty

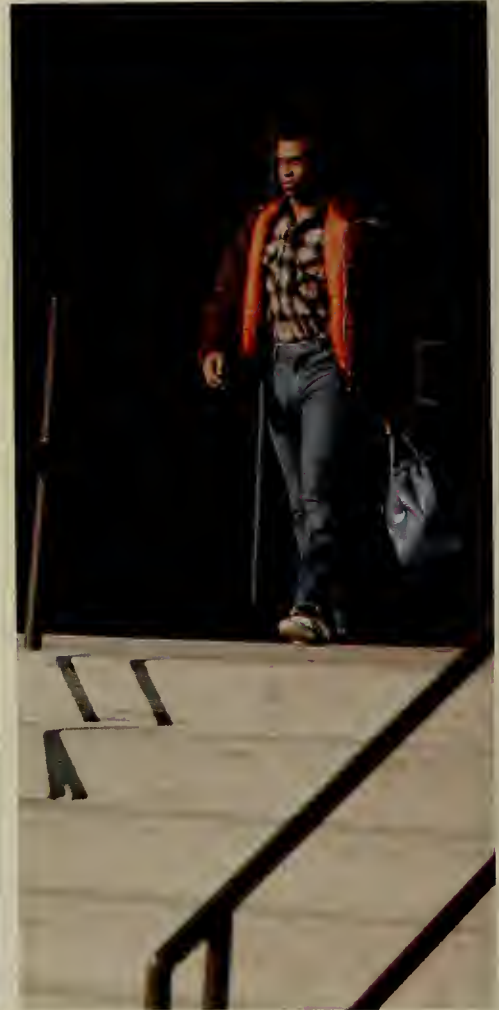

Though his dreams have lost a lot of grandeur coming true

There will be newer days

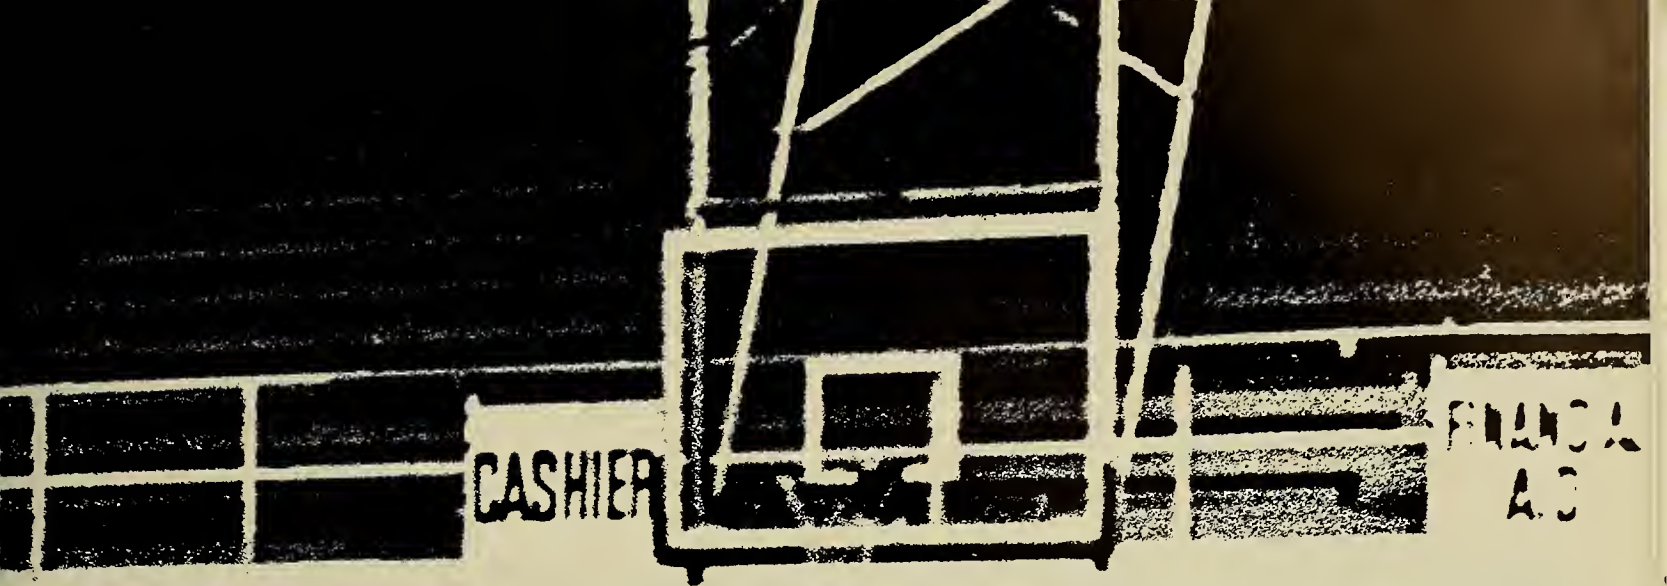

maybe better dreams

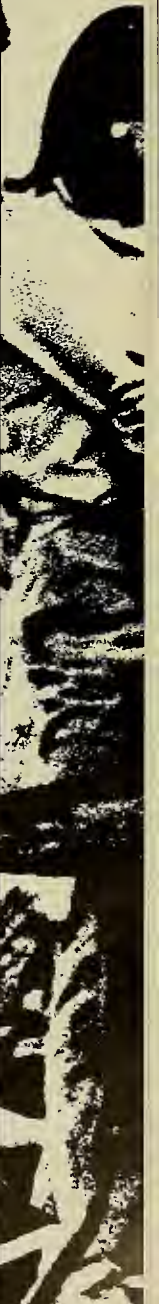

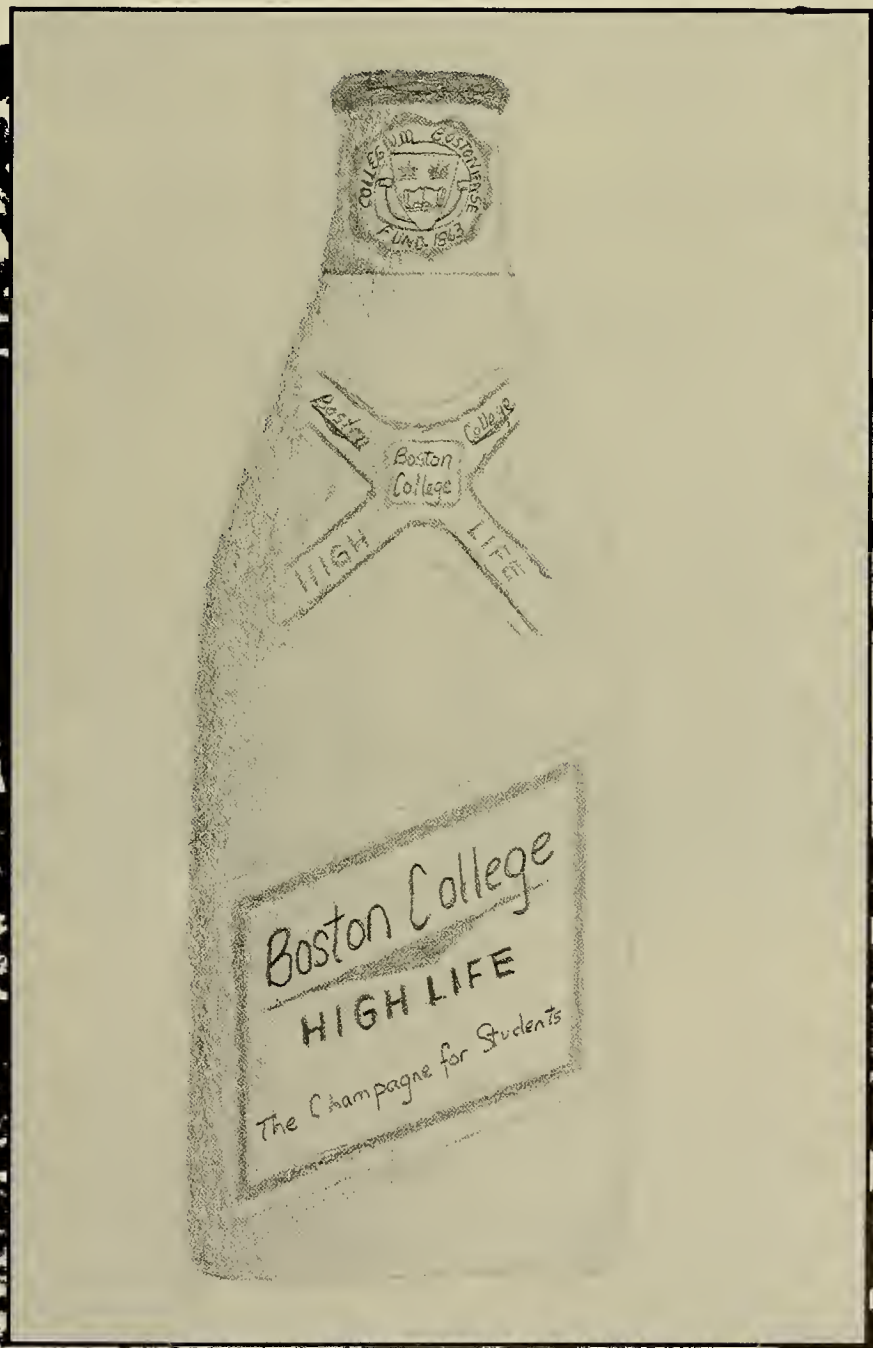

There will be plenty of new dreams
before the last revolving year is through.

STUDENT LIFE

seem like mere weeks.

Still, something is different.

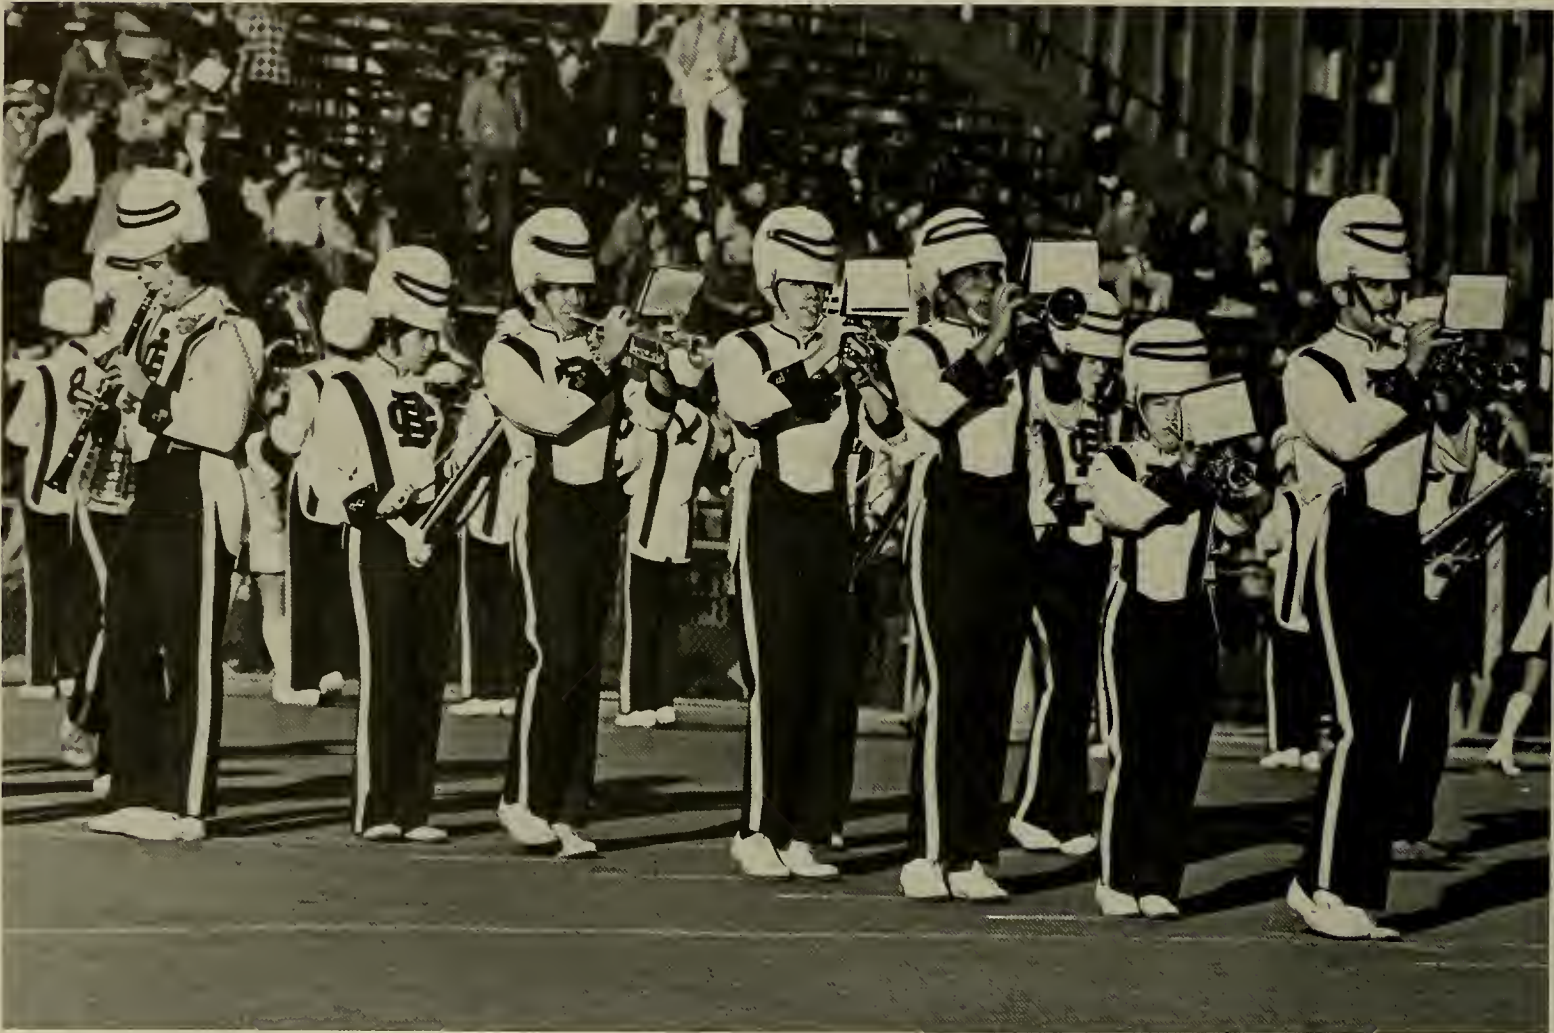

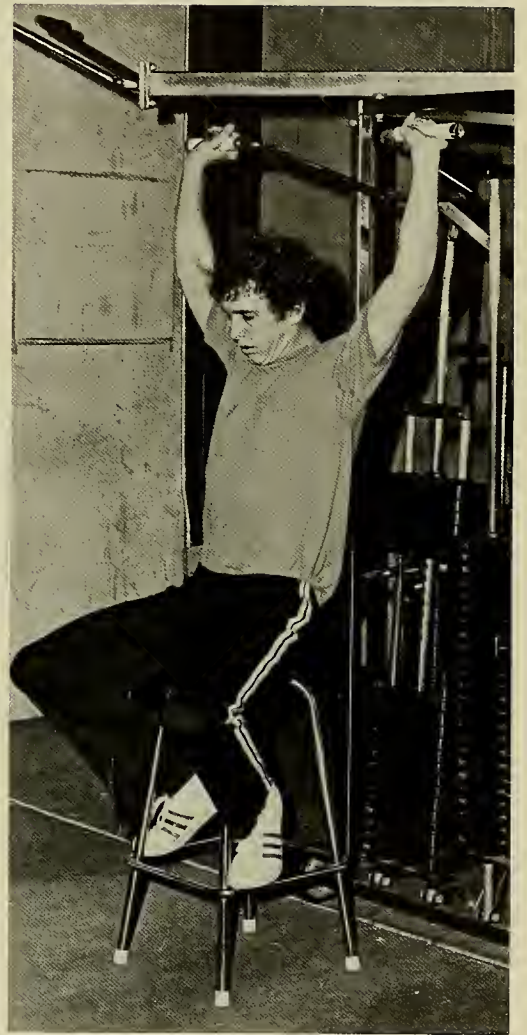

Instead of the end,

it is a beginning.

On return, it is soon found that some experiences never change,

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

My dear graduates of the Class of 1977:

Four years ago, it was my pleasure to read the expectation in your eyes, as I welcomed you to Boston College. It is now my pride to fix a signature to your Bachelor's Degree and address you as graduates.

A Year Book is for the years—the four past, and all the years that are to come. The accompanying pages retrace, in word and picture, much that has taken place on The Heights and at Newton from 1973 to 1977. And yet, I am sure, there are not enough white spaces on those pages to contain all the images that will be your personal remembrance of your years at Boston College. Let us be thankful to God and to each other—to fellow classmates and to faculty, that those years were so good.

I trust this Year Book will help you carry the past into your future; that it will recall treasured places and people, precious thoughts and aspirations that will enrich your lives always.

How does one maintain continuity, how keep fresh all we now treasure among the new landscapes we will encounter? Gabriel Marcel spoke much about creative fidelity—the active prolonging of a presence, the renewal of its benefits, of its mysterious incitement to create.

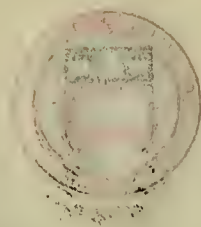

With Commencement I wish you every blessing—and to link them into a unified life, to link year to years, I wish you Marcel's fidélité créatrice.

May Boston College and each of you find creative ways to prolong the enriching presence we have been and are to each other.

Sincerely,

FEATURED FACULTY

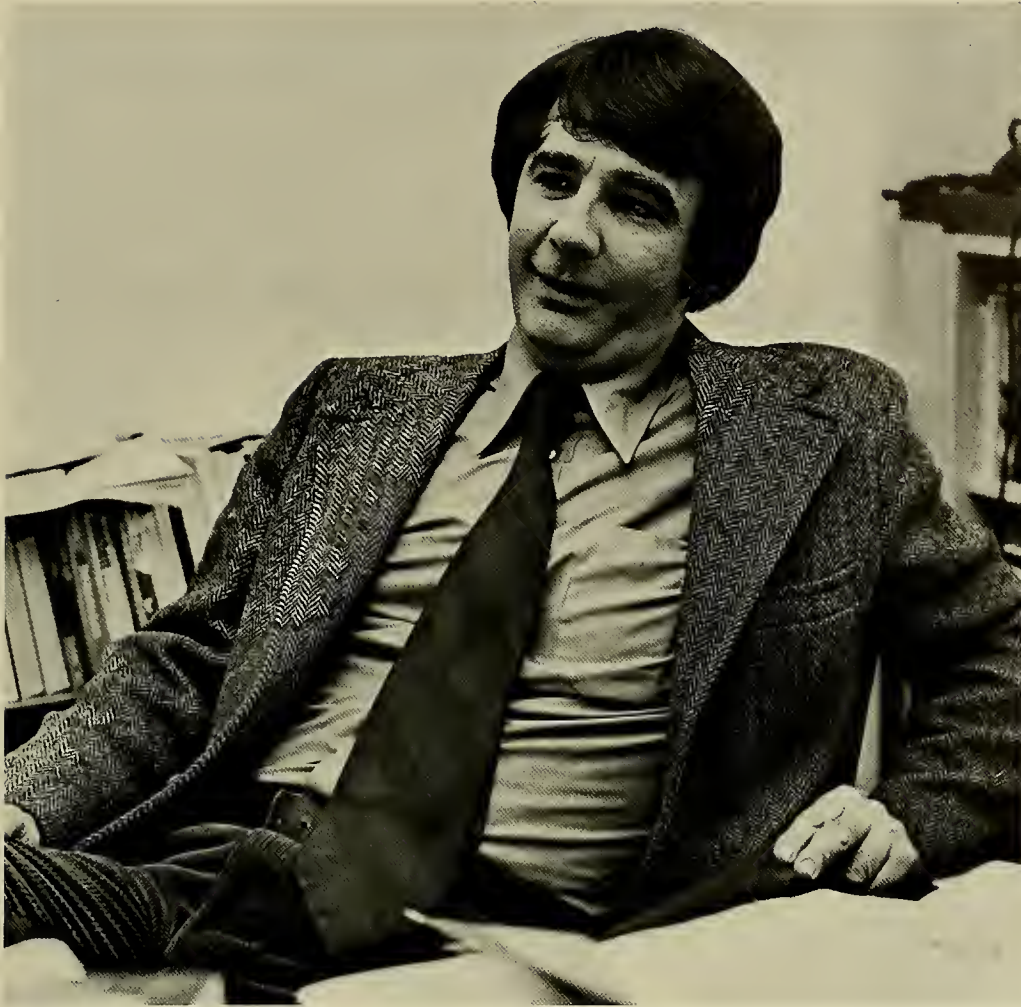

Remembering his own college graduation, Associate Professor of Political Science Donald S. Carlisle sees today's graduate entering a new America: an America where expectations no longer exceed possibilities. The frustrations of the 1960's and early 1970's, Vietnam, urban violence, Watergate, are all behind us and Professor Carlisle envies the graduate who can step into an America free of yesterday's problems and crises. The year 1977 marks a watershed in American history. It is a time where the new leaders can break with the past, establishing their own roles and ideologies. America has learned its lessons. The price paid to learn our limits has been small for "though our illusions have been destroyed, our ideals remain intact." Today's American has the opportunity to become an idealist with no illusions. Professor Carlisle believes that this new America is filled with realistic ideas and enormous opportunities to be developed by those who now leave the University.

He received degrees from Brown University and Harvard University. He views his education as a process of maturation and appreciation. The graduate's education is similar to the growth experienced by a growing nation. It is a continual process of self-realization, a comprehension of one's environment, and an understanding of people. The educational process should be a mechanism which develops one's "inner-space." One of Professor Carlisle's favorite authors, Boris Pasternak, best expresses this inner development." . . . we must find our own insights into our relationship with the existence in which we participate so briefly."

Donald S. Carlisle

Associate Professor of Political Science

The premature professionalism which pervades many campuses is upsetting for Professor Carlisle as it prevents the full development of one's inner-space. "To cubby-hole yourself in a profession before you have to is to cheat yourself of growth." A strong supporter of the liberal arts approach to education, Professor Carlisle observes that the person who possesses a firm liberal arts background develops a broader view of the world, an appreciation for the past, hope for the future, fulfillment of self. The liberal arts education is the foundation for a humanistic world view. Upon graduation, one will soon enter a life of fragmentation and specialization in man's mechanical society. To Professor Carlisle, the development of a broad world view as an undergraduate prepares the fledgling professional to cope with the rigidities of man's artificial world. Professor Carlisle's parting thought is that no one should ever lose sight of the greater existence which thrives outside of man's world, and one should always strive to realize this greater existence.

George T. Ladd

Associate Professor of Education

Currently in his eighth year of teaching at Boston College, Dr. George T. Ladd initially received a joint appointment in the School of Education and the Department of Geology and Geophysics. He now serves as director of the Curriculum and Instruction Programs in the School of Education. In addition, he is coordinator of the Science Education Program. He received his undergraduate degree from the State University College at Oswego, New York.

He earned advanced degrees from Indiana University, at Bloomington. He has co-authored two books with Dr. George Brown of the Department of Geology and Geophysics. A third book is soon to be released. Dr. Ladd was instrumental in the establishment of the Simulated Field Trip programs in the Department of Geology and Geophysics. These programs allow the student to experience the great geological areas of the earth right from the Boston College campus.

Dr. Ladd is co-director of Boston College's involvement in Boston's Phase Two Desegregation process. Along with other SOE professors, Dr. Ladd is responsible for the implementation of several special classroom and training programs in Boston's District Three schools. The designed programs seek to increase parent involvement in the school system as well as attempting to improve communications among parents, teachers, administrators, and students. Dr. Ladd's hope is that these programs will continue to function even after Boston College has left District Three.

This involvement with District Three draws out Dr. Ladd's inner belief that an educator is more than just a person teaching children in a classroom. An educator, a true educator, is one who works with people, all sorts of people. The educator is not to be bound by the walls of a class building, but should become involved with a whole community of people, using his or her skills in such a way so as to develop the potentials which abound in the community. The teaching professional must "broadly define people so as to encompass all with whom he or she comes in contact." The true teacher possesses a genuine concern and interest in people. The professional educator learns, as did Socrates, by teaching others. By helping others to grow, the teacher is constantly developing his or her own potentials.

If one truly learns by teaching, then Dr. Ladd is involved in a continual process of self-education and growth. His involvement in education is not limited solely to the Boston College School of Education, but reaches out to other departments and to other communities. The goals to which a teacher aspires are great, indeed. The teacher shapes not only the minds of the young, but must work with the not so young, shaping the whole human community.

Stanley Dmohowski is a Professor of Accounting in the School of Management. Professor Dmohowski has been involved with B.C. life since the early 1940's when he started here as a freshman in the College of Business Administration, majoring in the popular course at the time, accounting. There were eight graduates in Professor Dmohowski's Class of '45, due to the war. After graduating from B.C. Professor Dmohowski returned the following year as an instructor in accounting and has been here ever since. Professor Dmohowski earned his Master's Degree from New York

Stanley J. Dmohowski Professor of Accounting

University in 1958.

In the thirty-six years that Professor Dmohowski has been at Boston College, he has seen many changes. Some of these changes were discipline, dress code, admission of women, enlargement of the Chestnut Hill campus, a new building and a new name for the College of Business Administration.

Outside of school, Professor Dmohowski is a successful C.P.A. and a devoted family man. He has eight children, of which four are boys and four are girls, which makes for a balanced sheet.

Professor Dmohowski's trademarks are his daily quizzes, which he calls solid teaching tools, and his strong vocal cords, which date back to when all business courses were taught in the Tower Building in large lecture halls which held three hundred fifty students at a time. This was in the pre-electronic microphone days, when the only amplification a teacher had were his vocal chords.

In closing, Professor Dmohowski offers some advice to students graduating as accounting majors, "the main ingredient for success in public accounting is hard work."

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Sarah Cimino comes to Boston College after several years of rewarding and exciting educational and professional experiences. Ms. Cimino's current position is that of coordinator of the secondary level courses in the School of Nursing. Presently enrolled in the Ph.D. Program in Higher Education at Boston College, she received a nursing diploma from St. Francis General Hospital of Nursing in Pittsburgh. She graduated from California State University at Los Angeles where she was awarded a B.S. degree in nursing. An M.S. degree in nursing was conferred upon her from Boston College.

After serving as a staff nurse at St. Francis Hospital in Pittsburgh for six years, she became the head nurse of a large medical unit at that hospital. Ms. Cimino served one and one half years as a clinical instructor in Rehabilitative Nursing at St. Francis General Hospital. From 1961 to 1963, she worked in Malaya as a member of the Peace Corps. Upon her return to the United States, she began work on her baccalaureate degree. Ms. Cimino has been teaching at B.C. for the past six years; her area of specialty was cardiovascular nursing with emphasis on the role of the family in planning care for individuals. Today she teaches nursing care of clients with acute health problems and a course in the new curriculum entitled, Strategies for Change.

Sarah Cimino

Professor of Nursing

Her desire to continue her career in nursing stems from the satisfaction she receives in knowing that a nurse possesses special "skills and abilities with which to help people in a time of need." She observes in the Boston College nursing student of today the potential for that same satisfaction: a commitment to wholistic growth coupled with a developed sense of responsibility and a genuine concern for the quality of health care. Ms. Cimino sees the function of the nursing curriculum as creating

" . . . a professional individual who is active; incorporating clinical practice, community involvement and the awareness of the political environment in which she practices. She is cognizant of her professional power to implement change."

Possessing a remarkable insight in the role of the nurse in modern society, Ms. Cimino speaks of the need to prepare the student for nursing as it is envisioned in the next decade. The nursing student must value the "humanistic approach to client care," be knowledgeable of today's health care needs, and always be ready to participate in the changes which tomorrow is sure to bring to the nursing profession.

CHEERLEADERS

ACCOUNTING ACADEMY

The Accounting Academy has grown to become the largest and one of the most active groups in the School of Management. Its membership has annually increased its size and expanded its number of activities. This is the first year in which freshmen and sophomores were encouraged to join the Academy and participate in the various activities. Another accomplishment for the Academy in 1976-77 was the creation of a charter.

The first semester was career-oriented with a goal of informing accounting students of various professional opportunities. Seminars, with representatives from different accounting fields and firms, included Small Public Night, "Big Eight" Night, and Corporate Night. In addition, informal beer socials were sponsored at which professionals could discuss with the students both their experiences in the profession and also the many paths open to an accounting student.

During the second semester, the Academy sponsored the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program (VITA) in which the students prepared tax returns for local low-income and elderly citizens. In addition, the Academy offered these services to the Boston College Community. Government Night gave the students information on accounting careers within the realm of the government. The annual St. Patrick's Day raffle kept members busy through mid-semester. Finally, the year was culminated with a festive banquet well-attended by both professors and students.

The goals of service to members and continual contact with the profession and the community were certainly well accomplished.

The Cross and Crown is an honor society in the College of Arts and Sciences, designed to single out those students who have been highly successful in academic work (a 3.5 cumulative average is necessary for consideration), and who have also made a contribution to the campus life of the University by consistent membership in major extracurricular activities. It was founded in 1937 and has had members ever since then, with the single exception of two years during the war, when there were hardly enough students on campus to have members of anything.

The Cross and Crown was revitalized in 1973, and although selective throughout its history, is certainly quite selective now. Students are elected who have really made a difference here on campus by their membership in all sorts of things, from athletics to service organizations.

At this, the conclusion of the first decade of our existence, we reflect and see the new challenges, many achievements and continuous development of the Undergraduate Government of Boston College. Through these years our scope has broadened while we have maintained the same goals as sought by the first Student Government at Boston College . . . a blend of leadership, integrity and performance to serve the students. Student participation is actively sought and our Government is structured to encourage it. For the interested student there are several alternatives. There is service within the executive branch consisting of the president, executive cabinet, membership of the standing committees, or appointments to university committees. There is the legislative branch or Caucus and the University Academic Senate. UGBC serves as an effective voice of student opinion on campus. We have retained many programs and activities, and, at the same time expanded our horizons and implemented new ones. This year we have taken the lead in minority representation by the creation of a new cabinet post, Executive Assistant for Minority Affairs, and by the creation of the Minority Caucus. The Government also serves the students by administrating the $24 student activity fee providing services and programs that are academic, cultural, recreational and social in nature. Some of the achievements of this administration include: a revised constitution, a carpooling program and guest housing program for commuters, a university-wide course critique, an expanded social and cultural program of activities, introduction of a newsletter to improve campus communications, publication of a women's guide to B.C., publication of a university student-wide directory, expanded student input on Academic and Student Affairs issues with the Administration and Trustees, professionalized the government office, establishing regular hours, a file system that will serve as a history of past activity and accountable financial records that were audited for the first time.

Achievements are not always easily measured, yet with student support and through student activities, success becomes apparent. It is only through the exchange of ideas that our goals are reached and the students of this university are served in the manner to which they are entitled.

We wish all the best to the Class of 1977. May they meet with success and happiness in the future.

FOOTBALL

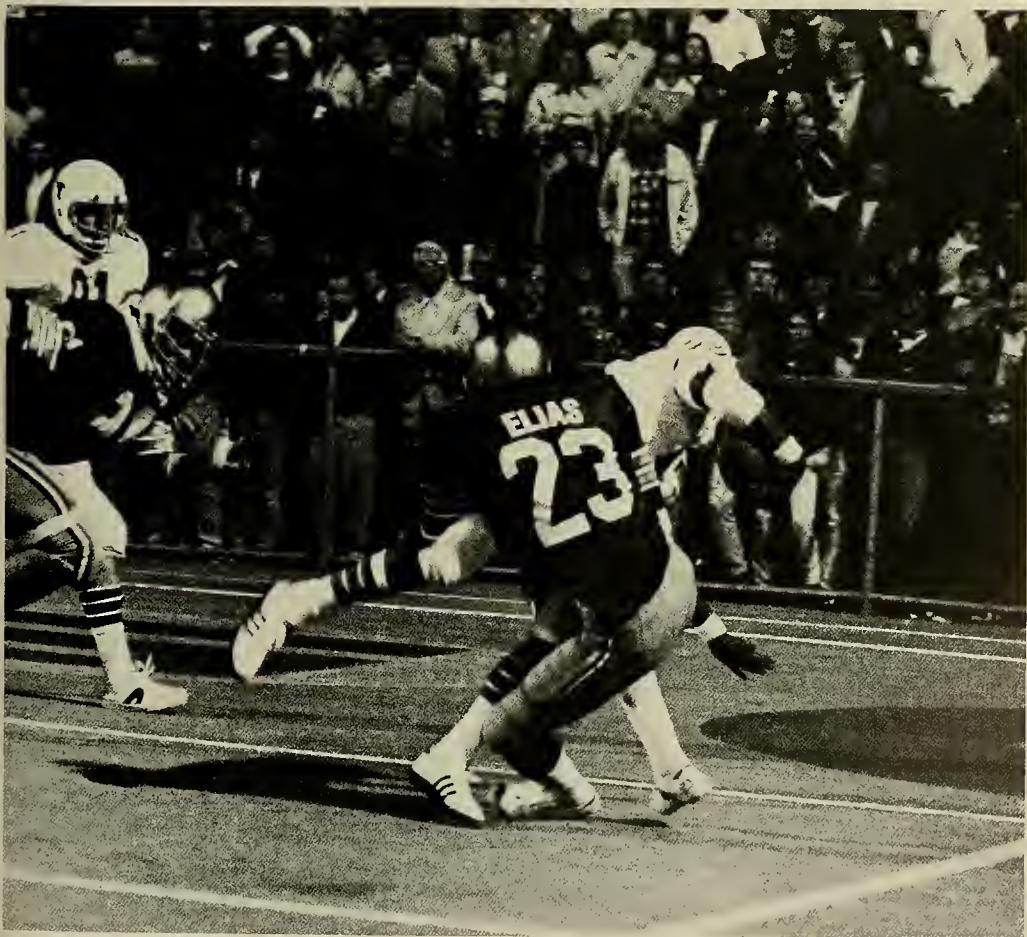

The B.C. Eagles have wrapped up another successful 8-3 season. The year started out with the big win over the Texas Longhorns, who were ranked number 3 in the country at the time. The experts had labeled this another of B.C.'s David and Goliath matches and they were right. David again slew Goliath. This game was called by many the most exciting game B.C. has played in the last 10 years, with defense lead by Peter Cronan meshing perfectly with the offense lead by Glen Capriola.

Slow and easy
She makes me flow.
This river of hope
Which runs so deep.

Peace at heart
She makes me feel
This array of dreams
Guides my heart.

This breath of life
Which fills from within
Is the love in my heart
That I give to you.

The Prologue Theme was written by Joni Mitchell entitled "The Circle Game". Student Life Theme was written by Eric Wallmark. The story of Boston was written by Marianne Egan. The Divider Pages were drawn by Robyn Asimov. The 1977 Sub Turri was printed by Hunter Publishing Company of Winston-Salem, North Carolina in April, 1977. The cover material is maroon leatherette, cordova grain, embossed, with gold silk-screened applique. Pages 1-47 were printed on 80 lb. Kromekote paper. Pages 48-480 were printed on 80 lb. Dull Enamel paper. The ink used for the body of the book is Hunter Black. The body of the book was set in Optima type. The divider pages were shot as lineshots. The representative of Hunter Publishing Company was Mr. Richard Lowe of Acton, Ma. Senior Portraits were done by Stevens Studios of Bangor, Maine. The President's letter was a special tip-in, printed on 100% Rag content, embossed letterhead stationery by The Regal Press Incorporated of Norwood, Ma. Engraved Stationery Manufacturers Association awarded Regal Press the Certificate of Excellence for producing the Boston College embossed seal.

THE STAFF OF THE 1977 SUB TURRI WISHES TO THANK THE FOLLOWING PEOPLE, WITHOUT WHOM PUBLICATION MIGHT NOT HAVE BEEN POSSIBLE: Dick Lowe and the entire staff at Hunter Publishing, especially Linda Miller, for their time, effort and advice; Bill Hunter for his suggestions for the cover; Mr. A. Allen Ollove, Vice-President of Stevens Studios; Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Baker of Stevens for help in organizing the senior portraits; Harold Dodge, who photographed the Senior Class, for his talent and patience; Universal Bookbindery, Inc.; Bill Duffey of Regal Press for his special handling in embossing the Boston College seal on the President's letter; Rev. J. Donald Monan, for his congratulatory remarks to the Class of 1977; The Office of the President and especially Rita, for their help with the President's letter;

John Lopez of the University Registrar's Office; Linda of Development for help with the patron letters; Mr. Foley of the Campus Mail Room for his assistance in mailing the patron letters; Carole Wegman and the staff of Student Activities; Reid Oslin and the office of Sports Publicity for all the tickets to the games; Public Relations; Purdy Vantyne for their basketball pictures; Rev. Edward J. Hanrahan, S.J.; Student Teaching Office at Boston College; Ann Bouchard at Mass. General Hospital; Rev. Charles Donovan, S.J.; featured faculty, deans, department chairpersons and program directors; patrons and advertisers for their financial support; the 1977 Senior Class; and many thanks to our faculty advisor, Fr. T., for his patience, advice, and the petty cash.

. . . Final Note

It has been my experience that no major job ever gets done alone, by one person, if it is to be done well. The completion of the 1977 Sub Turri is no exception. 480 pages are the end result of long hours, hard work, and a special dedication of a group of people who were determined to get the job done and see that it was done right.

My thanks to Dick Lowe, who gave me advice, picked up the deadlines, and threw great parties . . . To Linda Miller, thanks for changing my mind about the senior section as well as all the ideas about design . . . To Harold Dodge, who put up with me for six weeks during the portrait sittings and for the 34 pictures . . . To Fr. Trzaska, our adviser, thanks for the extra color, extra pages, and extra money . . . To Jerry Gallagher, thanks for the garbage bags and Wednesday afternoons . . . To the staff, especially the photo staff, thanks for helping me accomplish something very special and for sharing the many late nights, Room 107, all-nighters, deadline weekends, the beer, the coke, the junk food, the pizza and subs, the parties, the ride in the van, the joys and tribulations, the hassles and disappointments . . . and above all, to Norm and Sue. There would not have been a yearbook without all your endless combined efforts.

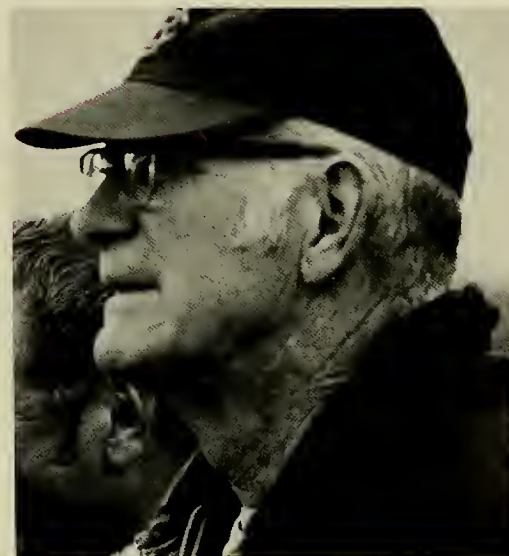

Forever, thank you.
